Prudencio Gonzalez In Collapse As Sentence Is Meted Out By Court

Alleged Leader of Hold-up Gang Drops to the Floor When Judge Traver Pronounces Sentence on Him.

BROTHER GETS TERM

Jose Gonzalez Is Also Sentenced To Term at Hard Labor in Clinton State Prison.

With the sentencing of Prudencio Gonzalez, alias Red Rubio, and his brother, Jose Gonzalez, in county court Friday apparently the Kerbonkoon state road camp hold-up, which took place on the early morning of October 12, 1931, in a closed chapter. The two Gonzalez brothers are allegedly the only two of the five bandits whom the law can now touch. One of the gang is supposed to be serving time, one is said to be dead and a third is in Spain.

Prudencio Gonzalez, the first of the brothers and the alleged leader of the gang, lost all of his bravery Friday when he faced the court for sentence. He appeared nervous and extremely pale and after listening to a short lecture by the court prior to having his sentence imposed he appeared on the verge of collapse. In fact he did collapse before the order was over.

Judge Traver had just finished a lecture to the defendant, telling him that the crime of robbery was a most serious one and one which did not frequently take place in rural Ulster county and was one which would not be tolerated here, when Prudencio Gonzalez, who had been given a fair trial by a very intelligent jury and had been offered the aid of the court, suddenly collapsed. Judge Traver had just pronounced the minimum term of 15 years when Prudencio fell with a loud thud to the floor. Jailer Clayton Vredenburg, who stood with Prudencio, was not anticipating a fall to the floor as he stood guarding the defendant and the defendant struck the floor with a resounding thud as his head struck the floor. Mr. Vredenburg and other court officers rushed to the aid of the fallen man and picked him up to place him on a chair while the court completed the sentence.

The sentence was from 15 to 25 years at hard labor in Clinton State Prison at Dannemora.

Prudencio was then given a drink, his head bathed in cold water and he appeared to regain control of himself. He hugged away at his hair for a moment and struck his head several times with his fist and then was assisted from the court room. Again he collapsed and had it not been for the firm grip Jailer Vredenburg had on the defendant Prudencio would have plunged head-down the steel stairs. Later in his cell he again collapsed and a guard was put over him. Later he appeared to gain control of himself and went to his cell and stretched out on his cot. A guard was maintained over him.

Prior to sentence he had stated that if given a light sentence he would study and try to learn some useful trade but after the sentence he later stated that he had little to live for. It was Prudencio who threatened District Attorney Murray as he was being led back to his cell after the jury had returned the verdict. He remarked as he was being taken to his cell that he would "see Mr. Murray when he got out." Prudencio is the alleged leader of the gang who held up the boarding house, robbed the proprietor of $1,500 at the point of a gun and ordered some 30 or 40 laborers roused from their beds and lined up against the wall to be searched. It was Prudencio, witnesses said, who entered the place with two guns in his hands and mounted a table and directed operations.

Jose Gets Lighter Sentence
Jose Gonzalez was sentenced after his brother. He was given a lighter sentence. His sentence was from 10 to 15 years. After sentence was pronounced Jose asked for leave to talk to the court but was advised to consult with his counsel, Francis T. Murray. It is reported that he said he wanted to make a statement to the court before sentence but did not and apparently did not talk with the court after sentence on advice of his attorney.

In commenting on the trial Judge Traver stated that the two young men had been very ably defended by a very able counsel but that the evidence produced by the prosecution had overshadowed the stories of the two defendants and the court considered the verdict a just one.

Prior to sentence Francis T. Murray moved to set aside the verdict of the jury on the grounds that it was contrary to the law and against the weight of evidence and he moved for a new trial and an arrest of judgment on the grounds the court had no jurisdiction. The motions were denied. He moved to discharge the defendants on the grounds that the indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Denied.

After sentence Mr. Murray asked for a stay of execution for 20 days in order to make application for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Granted.

Court adjourned to chambers.

Karpis Faces Ohio Train Robbery on U.S. Charges

Washington, May 2 (AP)—The post office inspection service said today it will seek to try Alvin Karpis for the Garrettsville, Ohio, train robbery last November unless he is given a death sentence in an earlier trial.

"We've felt we would have to defer to the kidnaping and murder charges first," an official explained. "But if he is only given a long or life imprisonment, we will try to hang our charge on him, too."

The $2,000 reward offered by the post office inspectors for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Karpis would not be available for payment unless Karpis is convicted for the Garrettsville robbery, it was said.

Neither the post office inspectors nor the federal agents would say today whether a "tip" had led federal agents to the New Orleans apartment where they arrested the "Public Enemy No. 1."

The inspectors said Wallace Briggs, inspector in charge at Cincinnati, had left for New Orleans to take into custody Fred Hunter, arrested with Karpis. Hunter, with Karpis, Harry Campbell and two others, is charged with the Garrettsville mail robbery when $34,000 in cash and $12,000 in negotiable bonds were taken.

Karpis also is wanted for the fatal shooting of a Missouri sheriff in 1931.

Clean-up Week Is Set for May 4 by Mayor Heiselman

Spring is here. The season is approaching when thousands of visitors from all parts of the country will either pass through Kingston or stop off and be our guests. Several large and important conventions will be held in Kingston during the next several months, bringing hundreds of delegates to our city.

Kingston is known as a clean and beautiful city. Let us keep it that way and strive to make it even more beautiful.

During the coming week the board of public works will pay particular attention to carting away rubbish. Citizens are requested to clean properties and place the debris in containers on the curb. If quantities of rubbish are too large for containers, please call the Board of Public Works, 2114, and it will be removed. Please do not dump rubbish on the street. Keep our city clean.

Many sidewalks need relaying. This is the season most suitable for that work.

Many citizens intend to paint and redecorate. Better results are obtained now, before the flies become numerous.

Sidewalk advertisements should be removed to improve the appearance of the business sections. These signs are dangerous to pedestrian traffic and are a violation of the law.

All city departments have been directed to cooperate in this city-wide movement to improve the appearance of our city and to make it really epic-and-span.

We want everyone to like Kingston and remember it.

A clean city is the best community advertising.

I hereby proclaim the week of May 4th Clean-up, Paint-up and Polish-up week and urge the cooperation of all citizens in making Kingston a cleaner and more beautiful city.

CONRAD J. HEISELMAN, Mayor.

Van Ingen Fairly Good

The condition of Superintendent of Schools B. C. Van Ingen was reported as fairly good at the Kingston Hospital this afternoon. He recently underwent an operation at the hospital.

Five Young Men Who Were Arrested, Jailed

The five young men who were picked up here yesterday morning on charges of disorderly conduct, were sentenced to 10 days each in the county jail this morning when they appeared before Judge Culliton in county court.

They had pleaded guilty to the charges yesterday, but the indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Denied.

After sentence Mr. Murray asked for a stay of execution for 20 days in order to make application for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Granted.

Court adjourned to chambers.

George P. Childs, Head of Federal Surplus Commodities of State WPA, Is in City Today Confering with the Mayor.

George P. Childs, in charge of the federal surplus commodities for the state WPA, was in Kingston today conferring with Chairman Stephen Hiltner of the local ERB and Mayor C. J. Heiselman, in an effort to have the mayor recognize the appointment of John J. Duffy of Rosendale to succeed Alfred H. Shultis of this city.

With the announcement from the State WPA that Mr. Duffy had been appointed to succeed Mr. Shultis in charge of the distribution of federal surplus commodities in the city, all distribution of food stuffs from the commissary in the building adjoining the city hall was halted, and no food stuff was distributed Friday or today from the commissary.

The distribution of clothing from the clothing bureau was also halted and none was given out yesterday or today.

Mayor Heiselman when seen this morning stated that he and Mr. Childs were negotiating, but that he would not make any statement at this time until negotiations were completed.

The three women employed in the clothing bureau were notified yesterday afternoon that while the clothing bureau remained closed that they could report for work in the sewing project.

"Use of any part of the ERB headquarters in the former Palen plant has been denied Mr. Duffy. The rear end of the first floor is occupied by the WPA clothing bureau and also the sewing project where over 80 women on the relief rolls are employed. These were both former ERB projects until the WPA began to function when both projects were taken over by the WPA."

At the supervisor's office this morning Mr. Shultis was still holding down the fort. Yesterday he was busy taking an inventory of the raw materials on hand. It was stated that Mr. Duffy called at the building this morning, but remained only for about five minutes and then left.

Although it was impossible to obtain a statement from either Mr. Childs or Mayor Heiselman, it is understood that a compromise candidate is being sought. Prominently mentioned is Ward Relyea, who has had charge of the commissary ever since it was opened in the old water board barn adjoining the city hall. Mr. Relyea is a resident of this city.

The objection raised by the mayor against the appointment of Mr. Duffy is that Mr. Duffy is not a resident of Kingston, and that the mayor believes that a resident of Kingston should have charge of the work in the city.

The shutdown of the commissary and clothing bureau until the present difficulty is ironed out does not apply to the sewing project and it was said the women employed in sewing would report for work as usual Monday.

Yields Peacefully
Karpis lifted his hands and yielded a pistol.

Arrested with him in his motor car near a pretentious Canal street apartment were a red-haired young woman identified only as one who had posed as his wife and Fred Hunter, 27, a suspect in the $34,000 postoffice robbery at Garrettsville, O., November 7, 1935.

He had been living in the apartment with the woman, who posed as his wife. Hunter visited them nightly.

His arrest followed two months of concentrated vigilance in New Orleans. Hoover said.

"We've known he's been in and out of New Orleans for the past two months and have been trailing him," he explained.

The nationwide hunt for Karpis began with the fading of his fingerprints on a gasoline can and a flashlight dropped by the Bremer kidnap mob.

Earlier crimes attributed to him and his gang did not come under the department's jurisdiction.

Uptown Bus Terminal Likely To Be Retained On Crown Street Site

Unofficial Source States Matter of Liability Insurance Has Been Adjusted and Metropolitan Will Likely Allow Use of Terminal.

TERMINAL CLOSED

Bus Lines Still Barred From The Terminal Today and are Parking in the Street.

The Uptown Bus Terminal situation has taken another turn which indicates that in all probabilities the terminal will be retained on Crown street at its former location on the Metropolitan Insurance Company property where it has been for many years.

Representatives of the Metropolitan Insurance Company were in town Friday conferring on the matter. The representatives were brought here for a conference through the efforts of Leonard H. Beers, manager of Sears, Roebuck & Company, but the outcome of the visit was not made public. The former Van Ross Hotel property which is now owned by the Metropolitan Insurance Company was remodeled several months ago into a bus terminal site after the old hotel had been torn down.

A modern terminal building was erected and for a time the bus lines operated from that terminal.

A few weeks ago the terminal was closed to bus drivers and since that time the buses have been parking on the public street, pending the establishment of an official stopping place. Work was commenced on a new terminal site on North Front street but at present the site has not been used because of the fact that before the buses may use any terminal the Common Council must give permission for use of the streets over which bus lines may operate to get to the terminal. The Common Council is expected to act at its next meeting in the matter.

It is understood that one reason the Uptown terminal was closed to the bus lines was because of the fact that the Metropolitan Insurance Company did not desire to be responsible for any damage suits which might arise in case of an accident on their property while in use as a bus terminal. The matter was one of securing insurance against liability.

While no official statement was made today as to the outcome of the conference which the insurance representative had while in town, it was learned from an unofficial source that the matter of liability insurance had been adjusted and the insurance company probably would be ready to allow the use of the terminal again.

The insurance company officials who were in town were in conference with Fred Hiltner, who operates a store across from the terminal, but what arrangements were made were not learned as Mr. Hiltner was not at his place of business today when a Freeman reporter called.

Mr. Beers stated this morning that he had arranged for a conference with the local bus people and the Metropolitan Insurance Company representative but could not say what arrangements had been concluded yesterday when the representatives were in town.

The bus lines were still barred from the terminal today and were parked in the street.

Some of the bus operators have expressed a desire to retain the Crown street site while others have expressed a willingness to use the North Front street terminal if it is designated as the official uptown terminal.

FEDERAL MONEY ASKED FOR IN ALL BUT 8 COUNTIES
Washington, May 2 (AP)—The PWA checked over what it has been doing during the past three years and discovered today that only three of the nation's 3,073 counties hadn't asked it for any federal money.

These were Union and White counties in North Georgia, and Putnam county in Missouri.

Each of the remaining 2,070 counties or their political subdivisions has asked for an average of two projects, even if they didn't get any.

BROUGHT IN BUT NOT USED IN A SINGLE NAUL
What is reported a record catch of shad is called to have been made in Newburgh Bay, between Beacon and Bearseman's Island Wednesday afternoon, by fisherman John White. White and his assistants netted 267 good-sized shad and had to make two trips in their boat in order to unload the shad. About 200 shad in one haul is said to have been the previous record.

Substitute Program
Washington, May 2 (AP)—A New York businessman urged the Senate Finance Committee today to substitute for the Moore Tax Bill a new program that would levy taxes on a three-year basis rather than on an annual basis. Stanley A. Sweet, president of Sweet-Orr and Company, clothing manufacturer, termed the administration's proposal to tax undistributed corporation income "disastrous and seriously fatal to the average citizen."

Volckmann Case In Week-End Recess
Catakill, N. Y., May 2 (AP)—Attorneys for both sides decided their strategy today for the fourth week of the Alfred E. Volckmann murder trial, as Supreme Court Justice C. L. Lawrence declared a recess for the week-end.

Attorney John C. Welch, prepared to finish prosecution testimony next week.

His strenuous objection to the testimony of Clarence G. Tenhund, a 20-year-old butcher he had admitted yesterday, a photograph account of a general session between Volckmann and the prosecutor. The transcript quoted the 20-year-old butcher as admitting that he killed Volckmann.

The native child claimed, however, that this did not harm the case in the line of the Federal search for the man who was said to build the daughter of a minister.

Selassie Goes to Djibouti, Capital Scene of Wild Riots As Nation's Defense Breaks

Fast Track Outlook At Louisville Today

AMERICANS SAFE

British Legation Extends Facilities of Compound to American Nationals, Who Accept Offer.

(By The Associated Press)
Emperor Haile Selassie precipitately left his capital of Addis Ababa today, the British minister there reported to London, and his departure was regarded as an indication that organized resistance to the invading Italian armies was ended.

Sir Sidney Barton, the British envoy, added in his report that widespread disorder had broken out in the city. In Washington the State Department said a British invitation extending the facilities of the legation to American nationals had been accepted.

The Negus was declared to have taken a train for the French Somaliland port of Djibouti, the coast terminal of Ethiopia's only railroad.

British official circles in London interpreted the Emperor's departure as the collapse of organized defense against the Italian invasion.

Northern Army Halts
The Italian northern army, meanwhile, had temporarily halted its advance on Addis Ababa as the Fascist troops prepared to push forward in the wake of an advanced guard.

Between the Fascist forces and the gates of Addis Ababa was an undetermined number of Ethiopian defenders hastily summoned by Emperor Haile Selassie to make a last stand.

In Rome, Fascist officials sought to check premature celebrations of the "fall" of the Ethiopian capital with provincial leaders summoned to discuss plans for a victory mobilization.

Some sources indicated the anticipated occupation might not be announced officially until Premier Mussolini appears before the Chamber of Deputies Monday.

Calls Naval Commission
(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)
Rome, May 2—Premier Mussolini called the Italian supreme naval commission for defense into conference today as his columns in northern Ethiopia prepared for a decisive advance on Addis Ababa.

If Duce, acting in his official capacity as secretary of the navy, conferred with the principal Italian admirals whom he had summoned to Rome.

While no information was issued officially on the scope or direction of the session, it was understood the Mediterranean situation was thoroughly examined.

Provincial leaders of the party were called to the Palazzo Littorio to receive final instructions for a victory "Adunata" or mobilization.

The conference on naval affairs was attended by the highest officers of the Italian fleet, including Prince Ferdinando Savoia.

The government also received the official daily report of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, which said:

"On the southern front while the enemy is in flight our troops are concentrating the positions reached in order to resume their advance, numerous chiefs of upper Ozaen province presenting themselves to our military authorities to make acts of submission and offer the cooperation of their warriors against the Ethiopians."

"On the northern frontier the march of all columns, overcoming notable difficulties of the terrain, proceeds according to the pre-established plan."

"Near Termedar huge quantities of war materials were taken, including two cannons."

Beside River Robd
(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)
With the Italian motorized column at Macdud, Ethiopia, May 1 (By wire to Asmara, Eritrea, May 2) For the second day, the main motorized column of the Italian army, marching on Addis Ababa, camped beside the River Robd today, waiting for food troops far ahead to prepare the way on the road to Ethiopia's capital.

The troops expected to leave Macdud at dawn Saturday, to enter the Shewan territories and to advance within striking distance of the seat of the Ethiopian government by nightfall.

Thirty divisions of this section submitted to the Italian command today and declared that Emperor Haile Selassie passed through here just a few days before the Italian army, while retreating from the Italian advance at all points.

The native child claimed, however, that this did not harm the case in the line of the Federal search for the man who was said to build the daughter of a minister.

Seek to Change Place Of Trial from Ulster To the Bronx County

An application to change the place of trial from Ulster to Bronx county was made before Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick Friday in the case of Etta Mertz against Nicholas Exposito. LeRoy Lounsberry appeared for Benjamin Lounsberry, attorney for plaintiff, and opposed the application which was made by Elizabeth Argar, attorney for the defendant. Application on the part of defendant was made on the grounds that the plaintiff was not a resident of Ulster county and also on the grounds of convenience of witnesses. The action is brought for alleged injuries suffered while receiving a permanent wave. Defendant alleged that the plaintiff was a resident of the Bronx and that in bringing the action in Ulster county it was brought improperly. Miss Argar argued that she had personally made an investigation and learned that the plaintiff occupied an apartment in the Bronx and that the name of the plaintiff was on the mail box there and that a small daughter attended school in the Bronx. The residence in Ulster county she said was simply the coming to Ellenville for the summer season. Witnesses necessary by the defendant she said would require the bringing of the proprietor of the place and an employee as well as a former employee to Ulster county at great expense and would mean the closing of the shop at a loss of revenue. Mr. Lounsberry opposed the application and argued that in the consideration of witnesses no "convenience" could be given to the parties to the action or to employees. He further argued that on March 6, 1936, the defendant moved to Ulster county when her husband's job ceased to exist. He said this was prior to the bringing of the action in April and held that the county of Ulster was the proper county since the plaintiff resided in Ellenville at the time of the bringing of the action as well as now. In considering the convenience of witnesses Mr. Lounsberry said that the law gave no preference to parties to an action or to employees or former employees. The matter of convenience to witnesses he said could not be considered by the court in the case. As to residence matters were filed. Further Mr. Lounsberry argued that the case was now on the May calendar in Ulster county and could be reached shortly while if sent to the Bronx there was no telling when it could be reached for trial. Attorney for defendant argued that if the case was on the May calendar it was improperly there as her time to file papers had not expired. Decision reserved.

Motion Denied to Set Aside Verdict

Application was made by N. Le Van Haver, appearing for A. W. Lent, in county court Friday afternoon to set aside the verdict in No. 7, Millicent against Fries, an action tried earlier in the week in county court. The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $300 against defendant. The motion to set aside the verdict was denied. The action was one on contract in which Lawrence Levine appeared for the plaintiff and A. W. Lent for defendant. All jurors have been excused for the term and there will be no further trial matters. Supreme Court will be convened Monday at 11 o'clock with Justice Russell presiding.

Gun Made Him Nervous
San Luis Obispo, Calif., May 2 (AP).—The city's World War relic, a German cannon, occupied a new position on the courthouse lawn today because Benjamin Cerin didn't like to have the barrel pointing at his house. Cerin complained to the county supervisors that the old position of the gun made him nervous, although the cannon had no firing pin and its long barrel was plugged with concrete.

Spring and business revival are both sick, but keep moving in a generally forward direction.

them and they did not want to ruin their handiwork.
Selling Arms
The chiefs were selling to the Italians arms left by Emperor Haile Selassie for Ethiopian defense. Despite the chiefs' pacific assertions, there were indications of some native defensive measures. Machine gun pits were dug out of the mountain sides along edges of the road south of Desaye, former field headquarters of Emperor Haile Selassie, where the motorized column of 15,000 Italian National troops started its advance at dawn last Sunday.
Rock slides destroyed some sections of the road.
The foot troops ahead of the road to Addis Ababa were acting as road builders to make the way easier for the main column.
From the mountains frowning down on the plains about the River Robi, this correspondent could see, through field glasses, that the natives had fled their homes. The Italians expected all to submit.
Capital Reported Unharmed
Reports from Addis Ababa said the capital was undefended and that conditions there were approaching chaos.
No serious resistance was reported ahead.
The weather was blisteringly hot, and many soldiers spent the entire day in the River Robi, building dams and swimming pools.
The Italians were unable to resist the temptations of the opportunity to put rafta together and to enjoy the rushing water.
The supply of matches was low, cigarettes almost exhausted, but wild game was plentiful and spirits ran high.
Marshall Pietro Badoglio's main northern column, rolling south from Desaye in 1,000 great trucks halted Thursday at Macduf, Ethiopian town on the shallow River Robi, 125 miles south of Desaye.
Original dispatches from this column said the stop was made to give the men "a short rest on the 'lay' stop."
Other advice to Rome, however, said the northern troops were meeting unexpected obstacles such as deep trees, great avalanches and felled bodies blasted in the imperial highway.
These obstacles apparently forced the second day's halt at Macduf, until the native Eritrean Askari, who left Desaye ahead of the motorized column, could repair and clear the road.
Haile Leaves for Djibouti
London, May 2 (AP).—Sir Sidney Barton, British minister to Ethiopia, advised his government today that Emperor Haile Selassie had left Addis Ababa for Djibouti, French Somaliland.
Sir Sidney declared in a wireless message that the Ethiopian capital is the scene of widespread disorder. The disturbances include shooting and looting, the report to British officials from the minister asserted.
Sir Sidney said that the Negus had left for the French port by train.
The departure of the Ethiopian emperor, who personally has led the defending armies, was interpreted in British official quarters as the collapse of organized resistance to the Italian invasion.
The ultimate destination of the king of kings was declared to be unknown to the British.
Emperor Selassie talked with Sir Sidney before his departure. It was stated the British had not invited nor suggested that the Negus attend the meeting of the League of Nations Council at Geneva May 11 when the Italo-Ethiopian question is to be considered.
Immediately upon receipt of the news of the Ethiopian emperor's departure Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, went to the foreign office to confer with British officials. It was understood here that the Emperor and Crown Prince Asfa Wossen accompanied the Negus.

Geoghan Expects Big Wendell Case "Tie-up"
Brooklyn, May 2 (AP).—District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan, apparently pleased with his progress in the Paul H. Wendell kidnapping case, said today he expects "to tie up with the case a very important gentleman in New Jersey."
"And I don't mean Governor Harold G. Hoffman," he added.
The man, he indicated, might be Ellis H. Parker, Sr., Burlington county, N. J., detective chief, whose son, Ellis H. Parker, Jr., is one of the five persons indicted for the kidnapping.
"We have evidence," Geoghan said, "that Parker, Sr., was here in New York during the illegal imprisonment of Wendell."
That strange sound you hear when you listen on a quiet evening, is keynotes trying to find the key.

Good Turnout at Industrial Minstrel

The Industrial Minstrel at Reade's Kingston Theatre was enjoyed by a goodly turnout of patrons to the fund for the promotion of Kingston, and a nice sum is expected to be realized when all of the tickets are accounted for.

With Mayor Heiselman as interlocutor, the program, as announced in The Freeman, went off satisfactorily. All of the performers doing their best to make the show all the more enjoyable, director, meant it to be.

Walter Reade donated the theatre, free of charge for the minstrel, which went on in a setting just as that used for professional shows. Reade Theatre employees, Ray Adams, Gus and Wes Halwick and Mike Ross, handled the show behind the scenes.

The soloists, all of whom were called out to sing the second time, or more, were William Raible, Vernon Miller, Robert Hawkeye, Martin Kelly, Jules Ewig and Raymond DuBois.

The second part of the show featured Ralph Mann, juggler extraordinary; Eileen Oulton and Harry Thorne, tap dancers, the latter being an ex-professional and now a local dance teacher; the double male quartette—John Dunn, Martin Kelly, Bob Flynn, George Rich, George Teller, John Fisher and Thomas Quinn; a skit, "Men in White" with members of the Kingston Players Guild, Gertrude Heiselman, Shirley Silverman, John Burgevin, Albert Miliken, and James Martin; Cosmo Davi, imitating Cab Calloway; and "On the Old Plantation" with Helen Stern-Mann and Jules Ewig.

Sawkill Club Meeting

They Responded to Call From Hotel Ulster That Man Was Trying to Hang Himself and Arrest the Corporal—In Jail Dolan Made Another Attempt to End It All—He Had Been Drinking

Corporal Joseph F. Dolan, of the U. S. Army, who has had charge of the recruiting office in the court house for several weeks, made things lively for the police department Friday, when the police received a hurry call from Hotel Ulster that the corporal was making an attempt to hang himself. The radio call that received the call over the air was officers rapidly to the hotel and the officers placed Dolan under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct. The information lodged against Dolan was that he kept the hotel in a disorder; by making threats of bodily violence to his own person.

Trustees in the jail discovered Dolan in another attempt to hang himself and notified the night jailer. Dolan's necktie, shoe strings and belt were removed from his person for the remainder of the night and Kingston police department assigned policemen to the duty of maintaining a watch on him in his cell to see that he did not attempt to kill himself.

This morning in police headquarters friends of Dolan appeared and after they had agreed to keep close watch on the soldier until he had become straightened out the charge of disorderly conduct was withdrawn and Dolan turned over to his friends. Dolan told Chief Wood that his actions were due to the fact that he had been drinking Friday.

Curvature of the Earth

Some of the arguments in favor of the earth's rotundity are as follows, according to a writer in the Detroit News: 1. In eclipses of the moon, the edge of the earth's shadow on the moon is circular. 2. All other heavenly bodies, in whatever position they are seen, appear to be circular. 3. An observer watching a ship disappear at sea, first sees the top of the hull, then of the masts, 4. The visible horizon at sea is circular and a telescope does not enlarge the horizon, as it would if the earth had a flat surface. 5. Experiments such as the "Bacon Level experiment" of 1470 have actually measured the earth's curvature. 6. The sun and stars are viewed at the same time from different stations on the earth have different altitudes; as their rays are practically parallel, this must be due to the earth's curvature. 7. The fact that ships have sailed around the earth, and airplanes have flown around it.

4 Dead, 16 Hurt In Oklahoma Storm

Andark, Okla., May 2 (AP).—Two sections of Western Oklahoma counted four dead, 16 injured, and thousands of dollars of property damage today from windstorms and a flood.

Three persons were killed last night when a twister struck a group of farm houses in the vicinity of Albert, Okla. here, 12 hours after a Chicago engineer died in a flood at Elk City, where the $250,000 city reservoir dam was broken.

The three who died in demolished homes last night were Mrs. Alice Lagron, 68; Harold Trull, 3 1/2, and Albert Earl Lane, one year old. Eleven persons were injured. Mrs. Virgil Lane, mother of the baby killed, was found severely hurt a quarter of a mile from her wrecked home.

The body of George Bates, 40, Chicago engineer, was found late yesterday four miles from the bridge approach from which the water swept his car. He was last seen signalling to rescuers with a flashlight.

Elk City faced a drinking water shortage as the broken dam left the reservoir virtually empty and seven emergency water wells were choked with mud. State and federal agencies rushed rehabilitation work and guarded against an outbreak of disease.

Damage to the east side of Elk City was estimated at $100,000 by city officials.

Heavy rains also brought long-needed moisture to the north central Oklahoma wheat section last night, and

Newburgh Artists to Sing Here Wednesday

One of the events of National Music Week as observed in Kingston will be the musical program presented by the Business and Professional Girls' Club of the local Y. W. C. A. at their open meeting at the Y. Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. This meeting is open to the public and the club has secured as their guest artists Adah Mase Curran, soprano, and Dorothy Mansfield, pianist, both of Newburgh.

Mrs. Curran is an artist pupil of Joseph Regness, the noted New York vocal instructor and coach. She has illustrated in many broadcasts with Mr. Regness over Station WOR in his series for several years on "The Correct Principles of Singing," and also "The Singing of Art Songs." Her formal recitals in New York and Newburgh won her recognition as an artist of ability. She has appeared as guest soloist with several men's glee clubs, among them, the Amphion Club of Newburgh, and she was selected by Robert Williams as soloist with the combined clubs of Saugerties and Newburgh on the occasion of the celebration of his twenty-fifth anniversary as a church musician which took place in St. John's Episcopal Church, Kingston, in April, 1934. As a teacher of voice in Newburgh for ten years, she has pupils occupying positions as soloists and choir directors in Newburgh and vicinity. Mrs. Curran is the soloist and director of music of the First Presbyterian Church of Newburgh, and also is director of the choral club of the Newburgh Y. W. C. A. For the past six months Mrs. Curran has been teaching singing in the Dodge Studios, 63 Green street, on Friday of each week.

Metropolitan Star To Sing Here Monday

With the music season already closed in most of the nearby cities, it is with satisfaction that Kingston music lovers learn that they will have an opportunity of hearing one of the newer stars of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Miss Josephine Antonia, soprano, on Monday evening, May 4. Miss Antonia, who made a sensational debut at the Metropolitan Opera this winter, singing the lead in "Mignon," is not entirely unknown to a local audience. Two years ago she sang the role of the "Sondam" in Handel and Gretel and although it was but a small part, she did it with such perfection of technique, that most of the audience came away with a more vivid impression of her, than of those singing the supposedly more important roles. That same evening Miss Antonia was the guest soloist at the annual concert of the Catskill Glee Club and again achieved a minor triumph. It may also be of interest to those who plan to attend the concert Monday evening to know that the artist was the first young singer to be awarded the Atwater Kent audition prize for the whole United States. Upon receiving this award she studied at the Curtis Institute of Music where she was a pupil of the late Madame Sembrich. Miss Antonia will be accompanied by Edward Harris, distinguished pianist, composer and conductor of New York city, who will also play a group of solo numbers. These artists are being brought to Kingston through the efforts of the Choir and Board of Directors of St. James Church. The concert will be held at the church and will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock. Robert Hawkeley and C. Ray Everett are acting as co-chairmen. They are being assisted by a large committee of choir members and others of the church interested in bringing fine music to Kingston.

Local Musicians In Concert on May 8

Convinced that too often a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, and that this community has a wealth of fine musical talent which is too little appreciated, the Men's Club of the Rondout Presbyterian Church has arranged to present four of the city's more gifted musicians in a concert Friday evening, May 8. Those giving the recital, which will begin at 8 o'clock, and will be held at the church, are Eva Clinton, violin; Jessie Cowley Wolfersteig, lyric soprano; and Helen Cowley Tremper and Edna Faust Rignall, accompanists. These ladies have been working diligently to prepare a program of real worth and appeal and will offer:

- Sonata No. 4 in D Major. Handel.
- Chanson Provencale. Dell'Acqua.
- Mrs. Wolfersteig.
- Adagio movement from Concerto No. 1 in C Major. Haydn.
- Air for G String. Bach.
- Alor. Rottler.
- Mrs. Clinton.
- To Easter (Spring Song). Carron.
- In the Luxembourg Gardens. Manning.
- Elf and Fairy. Denmore.
- Mrs. Wolfersteig.
- Rondino. Kreieler.
- Frasquita (arranged by Kreieler).
- Lehar.

Two hours mystery and thrills are in store for the audience of "The Ninth Guest" by Owen Davis, the forthcoming production of the Kingston Players' Guild. It was only natural that this talented group of young people who have given to Kingston audiences such outstanding comedy successes as "The Patsy" and "Nothing But the Truth," should select for their current work a mystery melodrama such as "The Ninth Guest."

Taking as his setting an ultra-modern penthouse on top of a deserted office building, Mr. Davis builds up an atmosphere of mystery immediately by introducing, during the first act of the play, a queerly assorted group of people. All of them are intellectuals and each detesting somebody else in the group with a hatred sufficiently bitter to lead to murder. From this situation, playwright Davis builds up one of the most novel of mystery plays, full of exciting episodes. While a mystery melodrama such as "The Ninth Guest" is a distinct departure from the comedy dramatic productions previously given by the Kingston Players' Guild, it offers an opportunity for this group to display a new type versatility which have already been under way for four weeks. The people of Kingston can look forward to a fine evening's entertainment. "The Ninth Guest" will be presented on May 15, at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

The Women's Republican Club is holding a School of Politics at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Wednesday, May 6. There will be two sessions, one in the afternoon and another in the evening, which are open to both men and women interested in attending. The afternoon session will start at 2:30 o'clock and the speaker will be Mrs. Henry W. Caraway, president of the Women's National Republican Club. At the evening session at 8 o'clock Mrs. Harold Remington, chairman of programs and the study service of the Republican Educational League, will address the group.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, May 2 (AP)—The stock market lacked support today and a lower drift was in evidence after an irregular start.

Losses, at one time, ranged from 1 to 1 1/2 points or so, with American Telephone leading the downward slide. In the final half-hour prices stiffened and the close was only moderately heavy. Dullness ruled throughout, with transfers approximating 400,000 shares for the short session.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 150 Broadway, New York city; branch office, 282 Wall street.

Quotations at 12 noon.

Alvin Karpis Enemy No. 1 Captured

cago which resulted in the death of a policeman.

The $32,000 holdup of the First National Bank of Brainerd, Minn., the $50,000 robbery of the National Bank and Trust Co. of Sioux Falls, S. D.

The Bremer kidnapping, in which $200,000 ransom was paid. The abduction of Hamm for $100,000 ransom.

Karpis' crime career began when he was only 16 years old, a slender youngster arrested at Topeka, Kan., for stealing automobile tires.

After three years in the Kansas Reformatory at Hutchinson he escaped by sawing his way through the bars, remained at large a year and was rearrested and sent to the Lansing, Kan., state prison. He was freed under parole after another year of imprisonment.

A month later, in 1931, he visited the "crime school" of Kate (Ma) Barker in Tulsa, Okla., and re-joined Freddie Barker, whom he had met in Lansing Prison. For a year or more they cut a wide swath through the oil-rich state, broadening their crime activities and adding to their mob.

Karpis was arrested for a Henryetta, Okla., jewel robbery and sentenced to prison, but paroled after he had served three months in jail at Okmulgee. Barker had eluded arrest.

In December, 1931, the two killed Sheriff C. R. Kelly of West Plains, Mo., when the officer approached their car.

In St. Paul, shortly after the Hamm kidnapping the Karpis-Barker gang suspected "Ma's" second husband, Arthur W. Dunlap, had tipped officers as to their hideaway, and Dunlap promptly was taken for a fatal ride.

The association of the desperadoes continued until the fatal interruption by Federal Officers at the Barker hideout in Oklahoma, which Karpis and Campbell escaped by only a few hours.

"Doc" Barker, one of the brothers of the crime-poisoned family, was arrested and promptly pleaded guilty to the Bremer kidnapping, fearful of the electric chair for murder in connection with other crimes.

After the Florida affray Karpis and Campbell fled north, escaped in a blaze of gunfire at Atlantic City, and since had remained strictly out of the limelight.

Of the entire original Karpis-Barker gang, seven have been killed, the rest captured, with the exception of Campbell. If "Campbell" has companions at this time they likely were "punks" of the gang's affluent era or newly joined associates, officers agreed.

Campbell is sought. The strength of the federal department relieved of the Karpis effort to make the cleanup complete. Successor of such desperadoes as John Hamilton, Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd and "Baby Face" Nelson in Department of Justice books, Karpis failed to carry out a boast his former wife, Dorothy Slayman, said he made:

"I'll never be taken alive." Saying she had not seen Karpis in four years, Miss Slayman at Tulsa, Okla., won a divorce last November 22, on charges of neglect and cruelty. "I always thought Freddie Barker was a bad influence on Alvin," she said.

To the law-abiding parents of Karpis, Mr. and Mrs. John Karpavics, of Chicago, the arrest was climax of a criminal career which drew him a reformer's sentence for petty thievery at the age of 17.

"Why tell me about it?" demanded Karpavics, an apartment house janitor.

Blaisdell Wants His Marriage Dissolved

Amos Blaisdell, Ulster county farmer, asked that his marriage to Adeline Blaisdell be dissolved on the grounds that his wife had absented herself from home for a period of over five years and he now believes she is dead. Testimony was taken before Justice Schirck Friday. Mr. Blaisdell testified that he was married in New York in September of 1917, and that he and his wife resided together harmoniously until one day in August, 1929, when he returned home and found she was gone. He has never seen or heard from her since and he testified that he believed she is now dead. After her disappearance he made inquiry of the police and of friends and persons where she might have gone but no one has since seen her.

After she disappeared he said he came to Ulster county and has since lived here. So far as he knew his wife had no living relatives. Joseph Aris appeared for petitioner.

MRS. DOREMUS TO ADDRESS WOMEN'S SERVICE GUILD

Mrs. Mary Doremus, county agent for dependent children, will be the speaker next Wednesday afternoon at the monthly meeting of the Women's Service Guild of the First Presbyterian Church. From expert and practical contact with this important phase of social welfare, the speaker will talk on the work of salvaging human life and training children for useful citizenship. The meeting is called for 7:30. It will open with a devotional service followed by a short business session, after which Mrs. Doremus will be presented. Refreshments will be served afterwards. All women of the church and congregation are invited.

Thursday, beginning at 5:30, the May Committee of the Service Guild will serve a cafeteria supper. This will be in the dining room of the Ramsey Memorial parish house.

TOWNSEND SCORED BY FORMER WORKERS

Gifts of Magazines

Two excellent donations of magazines were given to Kingston High School, which will add to the supplementary reading material available to students. The American History department received 14 copies of "New York History", the official publication of the New York Historical Association. These magazines, which contain source material about the founding and development of New York state, were given by Willard Van Keuren. Miss Martha Ward Shute presented the biology and general science department with 12 copies of "Bird Lore", covering 1935.

Play to be Presented

Miss Tarrant has been directing a play which will be a feature of the Parent-Teacher's meeting Tuesday evening, May 5. The cast includes Doris Warren, Robert Van Kleek, and Louise Cramer. Ethel Eckert will announce the play. Some selections will be sung by the Glee and Choral Clubs. The school band will play several marches. Model Scenery and Costumes

A miniature stage with the scene set for the enchanting Blue Forest scene from the opera of that title, was displayed in the front corridor last week, as was also a group of eight colored sketches of the costumes designed for the production. These were the work of Edward Milliken, who designed the decorations and costumes for the "Blue Forest."

Hiking Club Trip

During Easter vacation on April 15, the Hiking Club met on the corner of Lucas and Washington avenues for a long planned excursion, which was afterwards voted one of the most enjoyable this season. The day was crisp and bright as the girls climbed to the top of the fire tower mountain back of Hurley. There they built a fire, roasted hot dogs and enjoyed the view. Most of the girls ventured up the tower from which they could see Kingston, and a rainfall descending on a distant village.

Muller presented a medal to the track winners from Lloyd Post, American Legion; Willard V. Burke, physical instructor, presented the sweaters and the inter-class trophy in the form of a plaque. The baseball team of the school defeated Poughkeepsie Thursday afternoon on and Louise Cramer. Ethel Eckert will announce the play. Some selections will be sung by the Glee and Choral Clubs. The school band will play several marches. Several students will speak on the work of organizations in which they participate.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — For many of Hollywood's actresses life could be all beer and skittles, dietetically speaking. Instead of watching their calories to prevent the acquisition of furtive pounds these girls take weighty measures to maintain or increase their poundage. Their diets are anything but the lettuce-leaf-and-dry-toast variety.

Ann Dvorak's weight figured in a recent court wrangle with her studio employers. She is one of the girls whose weight worries are on the other side of the scales. Fay Wray, intent on gaining five pounds before starting a new film, is campaigning for abundant sleep, outdoor exercise, and "three squares." Jeanette MacDonald, weight 118, thinks that is too little. She drinks six pints of milk daily, eats white bread (remember when that was tabu from movie menus?) and takes dessert, thank you, as a rule.

Loretta Young, convinced it is twice as difficult to gain weight as to lose it, takes six meals daily instead of three. She drinks milk copiously, has candy and pastries in prescribed amounts, but meat only once daily. She actually gets tired of eating. Elizabeth Allan, now in England, used to be happy over her slenderness because it allowed her chocolate malted milks—a drink she reports is difficult to duplicate in London. She does not believe, however, in dieting to gain weight, convinced by experience that it does her no good.

Anita Louise, on the other hand, works hard at keeping above 100 pounds. Eggs-and-milk drinks once a day, vegetables with each of three meals, and a glass of steak juice (for energy) before retiring make up her dietary routine.

Rochelle Hudson, now making her sixth consecutive film, ordinarily is not bothered by weight problems, but recently has taken measures to resist the wearing effects of hot sun and long hours. A special wheat cereal, orange juice and milk have been added to her customary breakfast of toast and coffee.

Eleanor Whitney (normal weight 98 pounds) says she would dance away some 10 pounds but for the system of equalizing exercises she practices three times weekly. Joan Bennett prefers strength building cereals and cheeses. Her sister Constance also belongs to the battlers against underweight. When working, Rosalind Keith takes bananas and cream along with breakfast, and drinks a quart of milk during the day.

Maureen O'Sullivan finds energy in a simple before-breakfast routine: one glass of orange juice into which the yolk of an egg has been eaten.

Home for Aged Lawn Party

The date has been set for the annual lawn party for the benefit of the Home for the Aged to be held on the very attractive grounds of the Home on Washington avenue. It will be Wednesday, June 10, and the managers and members of the Home family are asking all who are interested in the Home to keep that date as apart for this most enjoyable affair.

Life grows easy. There are envelopes that seal themselves without licking. Now why not make 'em self-addressing?

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By Associated Press

Ronk Sentenced To Clinton Prison

George Ronk of Woodstock, who with James Donlon and Harry Bentley, was indicted for holding a drunken spree in the home of Clowrey Chapman at Woodstock and then proceeding to break up the valuable furnishings in the place, was sentenced to a term in Clinton State Prison Friday afternoon by Judge Traver in county court.

In imposing sentence Judge Traver said he was acting in a very lenient manner because of a request of the complainant and also on account of the good record of Ronk prior to the escapade.

Ronk and the two other lads it was charged stole a keg of beer and after work went to the Chapman place which was closed for the season and there staged a drinking bout after which they broke up a large number of valuable antiques in the place.

The two other youths have been sentenced to Elmira Reformatory and are now there serving their time. In sentencing Ronk Judge Traver said he was compelled to send him to Clinton prison because of his age, which did not permit a sentence in Elmira but that he was taking into consideration all of the facts in the case and would impose a light sentence. The term was from one year and three months to three years.

This the court said would cause Ronk, with time off for good behavior, to be out after serving about the same time as the other two when the time served in jail was allowed. However, in sentencing Ronk Judge Traver said he had hoped that Ronk would make some effort toward restitution between last January and now but apparently he had not been able to. Ronk he said was a man of years who should have known better than act as he had and in view of his age he said he would have to consider Ronk as the leader of the crime. Last January when the other two were sentenced the court suspended imposition of sentence on Ronk with the hope that he and his friends might get together and make some restitution, but apparently Ronk's friends in Woodstock did not have confidence enough in him to come to his aid. While in jail, where he served 170 days, Ronk had been a model prisoner and this fact as well as the fact that Ronk had never been in trouble before, was taken into consideration by the court.

Groundbreaking For Model Home Tuesday

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the Model Home sponsored by the Federal Housing Administration, will take place Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mayor Heerselman will turn up the first shovel of sod and will address the gathering. W. C. Kingman, chairman of the local Better Housing Committee, will speak, and other members of the committee will be present. Mrs. Fred P. Luther, president of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs, will also make an address.

The public is invited to attend the ceremonies and is assured that there will be valuable information relative to methods of financing and building a new home through the assistance of the FHA.

The model home is one of ten new houses to be built on Roosevelt avenue by Joseph Len, well known local contractor.

Effect Of Water On Heater Boilers

A rather startling example, to the layman at least, of what water will do to an ordinary automatic heater boiler, is attracting attention in the windows of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., on Broadway. It is a cutaway boiler and the inside, exposed to view, shows a remarkably rust-encrusted condition, although the statement is made that the boiler was in use but about six months.

The exhibit is part of a display being made by the Whitehead Metal Products Co., showing their model metal automatic boiler heaters.

Band Music At Ball Game Sunday

A feature of the ball game between the Hendricks and the Berardi A. C. at Haskin Park Sunday afternoon, will be music by a band. The talk is lacking, but it is stated that it will be a good band and that there will be plenty of music.

Feet vs. Forensics. Memphis, Tenn.—Federal Judge John D. Martin has found that lawyers' feet tire more quickly than their vocal cords so he requires them to stand during examination of witnesses.

He was acquitted.

Old-Fashioned Hurricane Chimneys

Return To Style In Modern Guises

The new-old hurricane chimneys can be formal or rustic.

By MARGERY TAYLOR.
Copyright, 1936, by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman

Maybe it's the fault of the weather, but, anyway, hurricane chimneys for candles have come back into style—high style.

The modern designers seem to have wanted more to work on—although the new hurricane chimneys come in every old-fashioned shape. But old or new, they are all decorative. And they really do keep candles burning more evenly and slowly, even indoors.

Informal, kerosene lamp effects? Or imposing elegance in 15 to 20-inch chimneys? You can have either, and many styles in between. The tall ones, plain or engraved with grapevine design, are used over Sheffield silver or Waterford glass candlesticks. Crystal cluster-hung candle-holders have chimneys fitted just around the top; they come plain or cut.

The terrace or garden may be lit with candles in informal holders in wrought iron and glass combinations—high or low, single or double.

The primitive styles copy old colonial hurricane lights. A real storm model is in metal, with glass entirely framed in metal—it comes either with a metal, untipable base for table use, or without for a wall sconce.

Modern indeed are the candleholders with straight-lined glass chimneys. One attractive model is simply an oblong block of wood, with two sunken holders, and each candle has its own straight chimney.

You don't use candles? Well, the hurricane chimneys are quaint containers for cherries, plums and other small fruits.

Juicy Apple Pies

(Worth a Trial)

All that nice juice in the oven! What a mess! Haven't you heard these exclamations frequently? Something should be done about it, and there is something to do about it. In the first place, most people want juicy apple pies. Sealing the edges carefully and building a rim of the crust will help considerably, because, if the juice "boils out," it will stay on top of the pie within the wall or rim of pastry. Make the top crust large enough so its edges can be tucked under the edge of the bottom crust and leave a fold of paste for the built-up rim. Flute the edges by pressing the fold of the crust with the tip of the forefinger of the left hand between the tips of the forefinger and thumb of the right hand. The expansion of the pie filling caused by heat will not then lift the top crust and separate it from the bottom one at the edges. Lowering the heat when the filling begins to boil will keep the juices in. Those who like to stand by when the apple pie baking is going on, can, as the juice is formed in the pie drain it off in a sauce pan, boil it down a little and serve it as a sauce over the pie. The following commercial apple pie baker's trick is well worth trying. It yields a most delicious pie and is well worth the little extra work it takes. Wash, peel, core, and cut in eighths the apples. Bake them in a dish with a close cover to prevent discoloring. Drizzle them with water (use very little water), simmer and strain off the apple water. Save it. The next day (remember the pie is at its best warm) drain off the sweetened juice that has formed from the sugar and the juice of the apples. Place the apples between crusts. Cut a round hole the size of a dime in the center of the top crust. Bake until the apples are done and the crust nicely browned in over 450 degrees F. for 10 minutes, then reduce the heat to 350 degrees F. Very tart, solid apples will require 45 minutes. While the pie is baking add the sweetened juice drained from the apples to that from the peaches. Boil down to a very little more than 1/2 cup, add a teaspoon of butter. Take the pie from the oven and pour in the juice through the hole in the top, turning the pie to distribute the juice through the pie. The bottom crust will be dry and the juices have been conserved to add aroma and good taste.

Graduation Gowns Blossom In Pastel Hues As Styles Veer From Conventional White

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York (AP)—Pastel colored commencement gowns contrasting with the traditional white, are featured in the fashion world for girl graduates of '36.

Auditorium platforms packed with youthful candidates for diplomas may resemble flower beds in bloom this spring, for sky blue, anemone pink and foamy sea green have joined white in the graduation scene.

Only the palest shades are used, but designers here say their vogue has caused some schools to chart the fashion layout of graduation platforms so that an even number of girls will be wearing pink, blue or pale yellow.

Despite the color trend, white remains a favorite. Numerous white frocks, however, are made over colored taffeta slips or accented by tinted sashes. Clusters of colorful taffeta flowers at the decollete make other accents on white.

Organdy The Favorite

The gowns are made of frothy organdies whose crisp freshness long has been a favorite of graduates. Some of the white organdies are marked with white bars, flowers or shadow prints; others embroidered in tiny pastel colored nosegays.

Following the trend for practicality many of the graduation gowns are designed so that they may be worn for summer dances later in the season. Most of them are toe length, designed like simple evening gowns and topped by short sleeved boleros which make them suitable for commencement wear.

There are any number of others, however, which are simply designed with puffed sleeves, round decolletes and skirts which fall softly from a slightly raised waistline.

School Policy Rules

With the skirt length question agitating both the younger graduates and their mothers, designers suggest toe length frocks for girls 13 or older and shorter dresses for the more youthful graduates. School policy dictates the final decree on color and skirt length, however, since some institutions have definite rulings.

For youngsters not ready for longer dresses, designers have turned out some of the smartest frocks seen in this variegated market. They are fashioned of white or ivory dotted net with puffed sleeves, soft white taffeta girdles, and skirts whose hemlines fall anywhere from a few inches below the knee to the ankle. Soft little flower corsages give them a decidedly "party air."

For the girl graduate of '36, one American designer makes this simple frock of white organdy, organically embroidered in eyelets. Its puffed sleeves and round collar give it youthfulness while its long skirt makes it practical for party wear.

This sheer white organdy outfit is embroidered in tiny rose and green nosegays and finished with a little cluster of flowers at the neckline. It combines an evening frock with a bolero which may be worn to coming summer dances.

FEED YOUR TREES

By The Master Gardener

Many trees are forced to live in very unnatural situations. Many are grown on lawns where the grass is in competition with the tree roots for both food and water; others have to grow with pavements above their roots and cutting off the entrance of food materials into the soil; some do not receive sufficient sunlight, while others have to live in glaring heat often, air conditions are not good.

Much can be done to improve the growth of trees and overcome these adverse conditions by adding plant food to the soil. Well-fed trees are much more able to overcome these handicaps than are trees that lack sufficient nourishment.

A thrifty, vigorous tree is less subject to disease and insects, too. Borers and scale insects especially are known to attack those trees that are not growing well.

Yellowish, undersized leaves, sparse, thin foliage, the presence of much dead wood, the dying back of the tips of the branches—all are signs of lack of food to the experienced eye.

For young trees, the addition of plant food to the soil that is placed about the roots at planting is sufficient for the first season.

For older trees, a different procedure is necessary. The small root hairs, which feed the tree, are located far from the older portion of the root, and plant food should be placed a considerable distance from the trunk of the tree.

Spring feeding should be done when the buds are swelling. April is an ideal time. A series of holes should be made in a zigzag fashion under the drip of the branches; the most satisfactory instrument to use is an earth auger, but an iron bar or other sharp instrument is also satisfactory, although more laborious. The holes should be about 2 inches in diameter, and 18 inches deep. The amount of plant food needed is determined by allowing one pound of a complete balanced plant food per inch of circumference of trunk, measuring the trunk four feet above the ground. Fill the holes with a mixture of one-half plant food and one-half soil. Then water.

Usually one feeding a year is sufficient but if trees are in bad condition, a second feeding in late July or early August may be advisable.

Neckwear Often Changes Costume

Ithaca, N. Y., April 25—Easy to wear, easy to change and easy to launder, are this season's removable accessories, say clothing specialists at the New York state college of home economics, who also say that the simplest way to change a dress is to change its collar. Different neckwear, bought ready-made or fashioned at home, can give the same simple dress a tailored look for street or business or a softer "dressier" look for afternoon wear.

"All neckwear, from the severest crisp pique to the most frivolous lace, should be chosen in relation to the shape of your face, the length of your neck, and the width of your shoulders, if you want it really becoming," warn the specialists.

V-shaped necklines are usually becoming to round and square faces. A long neckline is especially good for the person with a round face and broad shoulders. Rolling collars go well with persons who have angular faces, as do all rounded effects about the neck. Wide flat collars widen the appearance of narrow shoulders and should not be worn by square-shouldered and heavy-set people. A short, thick-necked and full-faced person looks well in flat collars especially those which carry the line of the neck opening down the front in a long line. A pointed chin looks more pointed if the neck opening is pointed.

A Feminine Dickey

"For accessories to be worn with the tailored costume, the college suggests such materials as pique, linen and crash. Many women find vestees, or false-fronts, a real economy to wear with suits to be worn without a blouse. The vestee may have a pleated bosom; one simple attractive style uses rows of shell tucking down the front. When it is attached to the shoulders and elastic or tape is sewed to the lower sides of the front panel, a vestee may be kept smooth and in place.

"The frilly, feminine types of collars, vestees, and jabots to be worn with afternoon dresses show more elaborate trimmings with lace, ruffles and tucking, and may be made with sheer materials such as organdy, mousseline de soie, crepe and lace. Collars may be flat, large, or small, some stand up close to the neck and may be trimmed with tiny rows of lace; or have small ruffs at the throat.

"Color is important this spring, and two colors are better than one for spring smartness. A dark dress makes a good background for a gay colorful scarf or collar and accessories, such as a bag, shoes and hat, of the same color.

Quilted Bags Prove Favorites

Paris (AP)—Quilted hand bags are big favorites here these days. They are fashioned of supple calfskin and quilted in fancy designs. One recently seen was shaped like a huge square envelope, with pointed flap.

Scotties Paired

Paris (AP)—Scotties appear in pairs on black lacquered satin. One dog is painted white, the other gold, on the shiny black satin ground.

Handles Carry New Vanity Cases

Paris (AP)—Small vanity cases now have handles like hand bags. One covered with black suede is equipped at one end with gold chains attached to the ends of a jade bar.

Acquaint yourself with the great variety of paper dollies, runners and eating utensils. Extensive use of such will facilitate housekeeping during summer.

New Craze for Bicycles 'Built for One' Develops Niceties Gay Nineties Missed

The cycling craze which has swept the country has launched a new chain of sport clothes. The suit on the left wears a dark gray wool capeline suit decorated with a trim jacket and culotte-colored skirt. The little leather lunch bag over her shoulder is the same shade of tan as her boyish felt cap and neckerchief. The costume on the right combines a dust tan wool culotte and a navy blue flannel jacket. The felt sunshade next matches the skirt.

Bright and Cheery Kitchen

This gay kitchen takes its color scheme from the Spanish motif of the house and is cheerful in red, black, yellow, and white. A modern sink unit offers a work place for the housewife, and adequate drawer and cupboard space has been provided. This room was modernized through funds obtained from a private financial institution which was insured by the Federal Housing Administration under its Modernization Credit Plan.

For Morning Cheery

It is rapidly becoming an old American custom to start the day with a shower. The house that does not have one is being looked at askance by prospective buyers and renters. Under the terms of the Federal Housing Administration you may install a modern shower in your bathroom. Consult your engineer about this work.

Clean Up—Paint Up

The spring fever of cleaning with which nearly every household is affected at this time of year extends usually from cellar to attic. Mops and dust-cloths dig and the splash of the paint brush resounds. When cleaning the walls, be sure that the walls are thoroughly scrubbed before applying a fresh coat of white wash.

Vegetable Garden Ideal Recreation

A Beautiful Vegetable Garden May Be Made by Planting Annual Flowers in Rows and an Edging. They Can Be Used for Cutting.

The amateur who grows vegetables as a recreation has it all over his fellow hobby riders, for his playtime hours at this avocation not only cost him nothing, but actually save him money. This economic feature of vegetable gardening is not the important one, of course, but it is satisfying none the less, and makes the hobby more interesting.

Designating vegetable garden should be as important as your street front landscape. Make it a comfortable place to work in and play. Make use of flowers as borders and accents, trim the paths, and keep the rows clean and straight. Fools, birds, hawks, worms and garden furniture will fit in the vegetable garden as well as elsewhere, and make it more livable.

The other feature of vegetable gardening which makes it a hobby instead of a job is the quality which can be grown with a little careful work and selection. Many of us look forward to the months when we can get tomatoes in season, because they are so much better. But tomatoes grown in your own garden and taken from the vine only when they are ripe are a half better. This is even more true of sweet corn and peas, and even string beans deteriorate much in a few days on the way to market.

Garden fresh vegetables are reserved for the amateur who grows them, and can gather a supply an hour before mealtime. Modern methods of storage and refrigeration have improved the market vegetables immeasurably, but it still takes many hours or days to get them ready for the table, during which time they lose much of their sweet taste and beautiful quality. On the other hand, the housewife can purchase only the standard and commonplace varieties on the market, whereas if she grows them herself, she has the choice of hundreds of types and varieties to fit in with her garden conditions and her fancy, and all ways have the sweetest and the best.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Smart styles stress knitted cottons.

One round of the smart style knitted shirt of natural color accompanied two cotton knit sweaters. The washable shirt boasts a non-sagging, non-wrinkling feature which highly recommends it for travel wear. It has two novel patch pockets and its color harmonizes with most any of the smart sweater shades which include honey, tea rose, loganberry, aqua, biscuit, royal blue and natural.

The short sleeved slip-over sweater shown at the right displays a convertible polo neckline that may be worn open or closed. The other sporty model of English rib-knit is styled with a bateau neckline and self-tie belt.

Home Institute UNDERSTANDING PEOPLE

Two such different personalities, yet she likes them both, and finds it hard to choose between them. That is Marjorie's problem.

Smiling Barry is lively, fun-loving, rather changeable, and inclined to go to extremes, but seldom depressed or downed by hard knocks. He likes a crowd, action, new places, parties, thinking or reading. Psychologists call him an extravert, likely to get on well in life, but in some danger of being shallow.

Paul is a different sort, quieter, reserved and always having a struggle with shyness. He likes a few close friends, enjoys reading. His real life is inner, emotional. He's a bit melancholy. An introvert, psychologists say.

In a way, Paul is the more dependable of the two—but he's not the one for Marjorie. There is just a trace of melancholy in her nature.

Too, though she never has the blues when Barry's around.

There's your answer, Marjorie, a tip from modern psychology. Barry gives a lift to that gloomy nature of yours; you may curb some of those noisy, unthinking, erratic ways of his. Paul needs a girl with sparkle, to keep him from too much introspection.

Let psychology give you the sound, scientific answer to your life problems. Our 40-page illustrated booklet, Success in Handling Types—Your Own and Others, is an eye-opener on how to study and improve your personality, how to get on with the people you meet every day.

Send 15c for our booklet, Success in Handling Types—Your Own and Others, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 169 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Conservation Work Sheets Available

Fred DuBois, county agricultural conservation agent, has announced that all of the arrangements have been completed to enable farmers who wish to participate in the program, to fill out the work sheet, which is the first step for those who want to cooperate. Any farmer who wants to participate must fill out one of the work sheets. This must be done to make anyone eligible to apply for payments later.

The county agricultural conservation committee has arranged for another county-wide meeting in the court house here on Wednesday evening, May 6, at 8 o'clock, at which final instructions for filling out the work sheets will be given. For filling out a work sheet specific information as to how each acre of land in the farm was used in 1935 must be available. Mr. DuBois suggests that those desiring to fill out a work sheet bring along specific information as to the acreage of every crop raised.

The office of the agricultural conservation agent will be maintained at 74 John street, Kingston, and starting Monday, May 4, someone will be on duty to assist applicants in filling out the work sheets. Mr. DuBois wants it understood that the filling out of a work sheet does not place any obligation on anyone. Later if the diversion is made or the approved practices carried out, an application is made for the payments.

Seek to Strike Out Answer in Action Here

An application to strike out the answer on the grounds of sham was made Friday before Justice Schirck in special term of Supreme Court in an action brought by Benjamin Liebowitz against Katherine Rusch and John Delay, an action for conversion and for injury to property. Joseph Rosenzweig appeared for plaintiff and Arthur B. Ewig of Cashin & Ewig appeared in opposition to the motion. In arguing the motion attorney for plaintiff stated that the action grew out of a real estate transaction and involved the alleged conversion of personal property in the building on the place and for alleged damage done to a building on the premises by the alleged erection of an illicit still. It was claimed the building had been damaged by persons to whom the building had been leased or rented.

The action is on the May trial calendar. One question involved in the action is whether Delay took title to the property of Katherine Rusch prior to entering into a contract with another party for its use. The question of the distribution of a sum of money paid in the transaction is also involved. Papers were taken and Justice Schirck reserved decision. The defendants claim their answer is a genuine answer and ask that they be given the opportunity to go fully into the matter. Opposition was made to the application to dismiss the answer of one of the defendants.

Preliminaries Crowd Political Machine, Heading Toward Convention Rollcalls

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington (AP)—Involved political machinery is grinding away at the job of selecting more than 2,000 men and women to represent the major political parties at their national conventions.

The delegates are being chosen according to state laws, at primaries, in state conventions, or by state central committees. Their actions at the national gatherings are being determined to some extent by the expressed majority will of party members.

Their numbers and the ratios allotted to the different states are determined variously in the two parties. There will be 1,001 votes cast when the Republicans meet in Cleveland June 9, and 1,100 ballots counted when the Democrats meet at Philadelphia June 23.

Convention Length Unknown
How long the sleepless, perspiring, gesticulating, speech-hoarse men and women stay in the two cities will depend on the fights which develop. But the Republicans are expected this year to hold the longest session. Their loyalties are divided among several candidates, and that may mean hours of balloting before the candidate is chosen. The Democrats are expected to renominate their leader in the White House on the first ballot.

Besides the official delegates more than 2,000 alternates, who attain voting rights only when and if the regulars drop out, will attend the conventions. There will be political camps for the various candidates, and lobbies with representatives of various organizations buttonholing committee members with pleas for special planks in the party platforms.

National Committees Start Show

Convention business actually begins months before the final gathering. It starts when the national committees, 48 men and 48 women in each party, meet to name the convention city. At a later gathering they name the temporary chairmen

Preceding such demonstrations as this one, snappd as delegates paraded banners and placards around the hall at a national convention, come months of preliminaries which keep political chieftains and underlings to open the conventions.

More pre-convention work starts when the delegates are named. Most of the delegates and alternates pay their own expenses. They like the excitement, and if they are political hawks, serving as a delegate helps to spotlight them in party affairs.

When the convention date nears, state delegations and various candidates open camps in hotels near the convention hall. State delegations in caucus name one person each for convention committees, of which the most important are the committees on rules, credentials, and resolutions.

The first establishes the rules under which the convention works. The second approves the delegations, and in cases where the personnel is contested, determine the delegates who may cast their state's votes. The third writes the party's platform.

How First Battle Starts

The convention opens with the keynote speech by the temporary chairman. Then the permanent chairman is elected by the convention, and the rules and credentials committees report. Over the findings of the credentials committee, very often, the first battle of the meeting develops. Protesting delegates are heard, and the official personnel of the convention finally established.

Next on the program is the report of the platform committee. The proposed course of the party for the next four years is read, argued, and a plan adopted.

Then begins the real show. The balloting for candidates starts. The roll of states is called, "Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas," and so on. Each answers, "So many votes for So-and-So."

The Republicans ballot until one candidate has a majority. The Democrats traditionally have gone on until some candidate receives two-thirds of the votes, but this year there is a movement afoot to adopt the simple majority rule.

Final nomination of the two candidates, for President and for vice president, finishes the major convention business.
